At the foot of the Caradoc, near All Stretton, is a farm house called Botville which a family of that name at an early period held under the Knights Templars of Jerusalem. One of this family was a lawyer, and was called John of the Inns, which was corrupted into John Thynne, and from him there is a tradition that the family of the Marquis of Bath is descended, who possessed the manor till the year 1808, when it was sold to Thomas Coleman, Esq. In the 10 th of Edward III the king bestowed Stretton on Richard, Earl of Arundel, and the year following he obtained the grant of a market on Thursday, and a fair on the eve, the day, and the day after the feast of the Exaltation of the Holy Cross.	1851
All Stretton is a township and village in the parish of Church Stretton, situated about a mile north from the church, which contains 2192 acres of land and at the census of 1841 had 88 houses and 454 inhabitants. Cross estimated rental £2268.15s. Rateable value, £1825.5s. The principal landowners are the trustees of the late Samuel Wilding, Esq., A. B. Markham, Esq., Panton Corbett, Esq., /Edward Medicott, Esq., Duppa Duppa, Esq. The village is in a romantic situation, near the mountainous range of the Longmynd, and not far from the Caradoc and Lawley hills. The occasion of the prefix, "All," to this Stretton is accounted for by the following tradition:- When James II was on his journey from Ludlow to Shrewsbury, approaching the first, or Little Stretton, he inquired its name: "Stretton Sire," was answered. Arriving at Church Stretton, he made the same inquiry: "Stretton Sire," was again the reply. Coming to the third, he renewed the question and received the same answer. "Upon my word," said the king, "they are all Strettons in this country."	1851
The Shrewsbury and Hereford railway now in course of construction will pass within three hundred yards of the town (Church Stretton).	1851
